A case of napkin ring calcification of aorta following traumatic transection

Kaushik Guha\textsuperscript{a}, Alice Davies\textsuperscript{b}, James F. Sneddon\textsuperscript{c}

\textsuperscript{a} Dept of Cardiology, Royal Brompton Hospital, Sydney Street, Chelsea, London, United Kingdom
\textsuperscript{b} Dept of Respiratory Medicine, West Middlesex Hospital, Isleworth Road, Twickenham, London, United Kingdom
\textsuperscript{c} Dept of Cardiology, East Surrey Hospital, Redhill, Surrey, United Kingdom

ARTICLE INFO

Article history:
Received: 13. 9. 2016
Accepted: 20. 12. 2016
Available online: 26. 1. 2017

ABSTRACT

The case demonstrates a hitherto undescribed phenomenon of a case of survival following an acute aortic syndrome without surgical intervention.

Klíčová slova:
Aorta
Transsekce aorty
Výpočetní tomografie

Address: Dr Kaushik Guha, ST7 in Cardiology, Dept of Cardiology, Royal Brompton Hospital, Sydney Street, London SW3 6NP, United Kingdom, e-mail: kguha@doctors.org.uk
DOI: 10.1016/j.crtasa.2016.12.006

Please cite this article as: K. Guha, et al., A case of napkin ring calcification of aorta following traumatic transection, Cor et Vasa 60 (2018) e99–e100 as published in the online version of Cor et Vasa available at https://www.sciencedirect.com/science/article/pii/S0010865016301023 te corrective surgery [2]. This case represents a unique occurrence within the literature with a healed transection being incidentally diagnosed fifty years following the event and survival despite receiving no aortic intervention.

Fig. 1 – Coronal view of thoracic aorta with prominent calcification of aortic arch.

Fig. 2 – Sagittal view of aortic root and thoracic aorta. Significant aortic calcification noted distal to left subclavian origin.

References
